

A Frail Person or A Frail System?

An analysis of hospital admissions post and prior to a fall

- Almost three quarters of persons admitted for falls have subsequent admissions within 2 years.
- Annual analysis allows for greater understanding of subsequent admissions than current readmission measures.
- Requirement of a move towards managing frailty (and co-morbidities) rather than dealing with the consequent fall or other admissions.
- Is the current system helping or perpetuating frailty related falls and hospital admissions?
